

I think that Broadband Over Power Lines will be the death of Hf radio bands for both the amateur radio community and the military.

There are other means available to service internet customers via satellite, telephone and DSL. I have cable for high speed internet.

I have power lines around my house already and get enough interference from them, broad band will add to the chatter.

Respectfully submitted,
Ronnie R. Farley KG4QIV